At this show, it's not just the items that are on display, but the people who make them. The women in the photo are from the Asian Handicrafts Association, a group of women who have come together to promote the sale of their own and other women's handicrafts. The items on display are made from a variety of materials, including silk, cotton, and wool. They are also made in a variety of styles, from traditional to modern. The women in the photo are from different parts of Asia, and they are all proud of their work. They hope that by selling their handicrafts, they can help to support their communities and their families. The Asian Handicrafts Association is a non-profit organization that was founded in 1978. It has since grown to become one of the largest handicraft associations in Australia. It has helped to create jobs for thousands of women and has raised millions of dollars for charity. The association is committed to promoting the sale of Asian handicrafts and to supporting the women who make them. It is also committed to promoting the sale of Australian handicrafts and to supporting the women who make them. The association is a great example of what can be achieved when women come together to support each other and their communities.
